THE FIRST DEDICATED ENERGY AND INFRASTRUCTURE EVENT IN SOUTH SUDAN

East Africa's largest upstream market is in its ascendancy in 2017, with a pro-business administration encouraging exploration and investment in infrastructure. The year so far has seen a new entrant to the sector, an important agreement with Equatorial Guinea to promote local content and gas utilization, discussions beginning with new explorers, and huge interest from the international E&P community. South Sudan Oil & Power will be the first dedicated energy and infrastructure event in the nation's history.

Join us for South Sudan's elite energy and infrastructure event at the UAP Equatoria Tower on October 11-12, 2017.

SOUTH SUDAN'S ELITE ENERGY EVENT

Event features

South Sudan Oil & Power is commissioned by and fully endorsed by the Ministry of Petroleum of South Sudan.

Keynote inaugural speech from H.E. Amb. Ezekiel Lol Gatkuoth, Minister of Petroleum.

Keynote speeches from South Sudan ministries and agencies and representatives from Nilepet, the JOCs and investment partners.

Panel discussions will address the critical issues of security on the oilfield, how to invest in South Sudan and fund projects, and regional integration and infrastructure.

50 speakers and 300 local and international private sector delegates to attend

Workshops hosted by local and international companies to examine topics including joint ventures, investment, CSR and local content, and financing projects.

Meetings to be arranged in dedicated boardrooms in order to facilitate dealmaking. VIP dinner and sponsored networking lunches scheduled.

Key themes

Critical energy infrastructure and new technology in the upstream, midstream and downstream: How to finance it, build/implement it, and operate it.

Regional energy integration: Getting new refineries and export routes on-stream and opening regional markets for South Sudanese petroleum products.

Local content, power and gas utilization: Nurturing the local private sector and promoting economic growth through new technologies.

Infrastructure building to support the energy industry and diverse sectors simultaneously. Encouraging regional investment in infrastructure.

13:30 | PANEL: REGIONAL INTEGRATION & INFRASTRUCTURE

South Sudan's regional oil and gas infrastructure is limited to its pipeline link to Sudan. To increase production and take full advantage of its status as the only mature oil producer in the East African Community, South Sudan will need to integrate its energy infrastructure with that of Kenya, Ethiopia and Uganda. Oil and gas discoveries in the Rift systems of Uganda and Kenya are transforming the energy profile of East Africa, but for all the region's exploration success, integration and regional infrastructure projects are lacking. How can South Sudan and its neighbors cooperate to plan, finance and build infrastructure? What can South Sudan do to better exploit its position in a regional market of 150 million people? Our panel tackles these questions.

14:30 | PANEL: SECURITY & STABILITY

South Sudan's oil production plunged in 2013 as war shut down facilities across its northern oilfields. Of South Sudan's three operating consortia today only one, Dar Petroleum Operating Company, is producing significant volumes of oil. As the Sudd and Greater Pioneer operating companies prepare to restart production after almost four years, our panel examines the crucial role that security has played in shaping the business environment in South Sudan. How have companies continued to operate in challenging cities and field locations? What security measures have been put in place to mitigate the insecurity? And how can the private and public sectors coordinate to improve the security situation and allow producers and new explorers to begin work?

15:45 | PANEL: INVESTING IN SOUTH SUDAN

Instability and insecurity in South Sudan have posed, for some investors, insurmountable challenges. But the nation's resource base, human capital potential and its infrastructure deficit - from roads and railways to pipelines and phone lines - also present unparalleled investment opportunities. How can energy and infrastructure projects gain funding in South Sudan today? What are the risks and how can they be better managed? What are the economic challenges and how will they be overcome? What mechanisms can be employed to finance local companies' growth as well as civil engineering and large scale oil and gas developments? Our panel looks at the regulatory framework and the fundamentals of investing in South Sudanese energy and infrastructure.
